Nikki Lanier

RACIAL EQUITY STRATEGIST

This previous labor and employment attorney and Federal Reserve executive makes an exceptional expert on topics like DEI, the future of work, racial equity, Human Resources/people and practices and some areas of banking and economics. She is the only global DEI thought leader who speaks and consults on racial equity as a macroeconomic imperative. As the founder of Harper Slade Racial Equity Advisory, one of the fastest growing racial equity advisory firms in the country, she works with employers in the public and private sectors and provides retained advisory, e-learning, training and workshops and coaching.

Through Nikki Lanier Holdings, Lanier hosts black professional mixer events, speaks at conferences all over the world and offers extended coaching programs for white women who want to get racial equity advocacy right and black professional women in need of coaching, ripening and respite. Formally trained in broadcast journalism, Nikki is a sought after expert with a refreshingly relatable style.

Let's Work Together

Nikki's powerful and unique media messages:

- It is possible to create a world where racism can't live
- There is an increasingly inextricable link among race, work and economics
- We must create work environments where black and brown talent can thrive
- DEI requires us to be what we have never been. It's counter-cultural & far from intuitive

Nikki is the founder of the RAARE Woman Collective, a program suite for white women interested in leading racial equity at home, in their community and at work. She is hosting a LIVE three day launch event, bringing 200 women to
